Juror Suddenly Insane, Striker's Trial Is Halted

Presiding Judge Orders Mistrial Entered In Cause

Defense Asks Another Juror Be Selected and Trial Proceed

SUDDENLY VIOLENT

Officers Overpower Man and He Is Confined In County Jail

CHARLOTTE, N. C. Sept. 9.—(AP)—The trial of the 16 Bastonia textile strikers and leaders on a charge of murder growing out of the death of O. E. Adair, Gastonia chief of police came to an abrupt end today when J. G. Campbell, one of the jurors, suddenly became violently insane.

Judge Barnhill, presiding, immediately after court convened at 9:40 this morning ordered a mistrial entered in the case.

Campbell became violent as the jury was being brought into court this morning. Deputy sheriff Avery Johnson, another officer and a juror or two overpowered the demented man and took him to the county jail where it took the combined efforts of four men to place him in a cell.

First Noticed Saturday

Campbell first developed signs of mental aberration Saturday afternoon shortly after court adjourned. He had another attack Saturday night, another Sunday and one at three o'clock this morning.

After Judge Barnhill had ordered the mistrial entered attorney Frank Flowers, for the defense, objected to the order, suggested that the remaining 11 jurors be held and another sworn in. The court said he doubted if that could be legally be done as the official term of court ended Saturday. The defense asked time to look up the matter and the court ordered that his mistrial ruling be held up temporarily.

'Handy-Andy' Will Soon Be In Hope

Patterson's Grocery Converting to Popular National System

The national known Handy-Andy system of merchandising groceries, a strictly cash and carry plan, is now being installed in the R. L. Patterson Grocery on Elm street here. The doors of the store were closed this morning with carpenters and painters completely remodeling the entire interior of the store to conform to the Handy-Andy system.

Patterson's Grocery store is one of the oldest of the stores in Hope. More than a year ago Mr. Patterson recognized the growing trend of buying for cash on the part of public, and abandoned all delivery service, excepting larger orders, and by making an extra charge for credit accounts, and by partially adopting the cash and carry system. Now, he has secured the Handy-Andy franchise for this county, in order to take advantage of group buying with hundreds of other similar stores. Charge accounts and delivery service have been abandoned. This enables him to operate his store at smaller expense and represents a saving to his customers.

Esther Tenenbaum of Cleveland, captain of the pilot usherettes at the National Air Races, displays the costliest plane ever built, for it consists of more than 3500 diamonds, 3800 oriental sapphires and 2800 rubies, and is valued at $300,000 by the jeweler who made it for exhibition at the air show.

Arkansas Air Tour To Stop Off Here

Hope Designated for Noon Stop Wednesday, September 25

Hope is to see this year's Arkansas Air Tour. The announcement that 25 civilian and military planes would stop here on their annual swing around the state, was made yesterday by Charles Taylor, of the Union Trust company, Little Rock, who flew down here in his pathfinding "ship" with Gus Olsen, of the Arkansas Democrat.

The air tourists visit here will coincide with Aviation day at the Southwest Arkansas Fair Wednesday, September 25. The annual tour begins at Little Rock September 24, the first day covering Eastern Arkansas and return to Fort Smith, where the first night will be spent. The air caravan will arrive in Hope about noon of the second day, en route from Fort Smith to Pine Bluff.

Mr. Taylor, who has visited every airport in Arkansas, was enthusiastic over Hope's large and flat landing field. He suggested whitening the telephone poles bordering the edge of the field along the Washington highway, but found the field otherwise one of the best in the state.

The fliers, who came here in the Union Trust company's Swallow plane, were met on the field by W. Homer Pigg, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and the aviation committee, headed by Barney Hamm.

Unique Stunt At Experiment Farm

Blasting and Stump-Pulling Demonstration for Thursday

A unique stump blasting and land clearing demonstration will be held at the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station Thursday afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock according to W. Ware, assistant director in charge.

Mr. A. J. McAdams, experienced representative of the Du Pont Explosive company will be present to show visiting farmers the latest tools and methods now employed in farm blasting.

Stumps of different kinds and sizes will be blown, using the old fuse style and electric methods of "setting off." In addition, a caterpillar tractor with properly arranged pulleys will be employed to remove snags, small stumps, and logs.

The University Experiment Station feels that a demonstration of this nature is very much in order at this time of the year, and farmers from Hempstead and adjoining counties are urged and expected to be present.

Plan Last Rites for Victims of Air Liner Crash

Sheriff Leads Party To Scene Where Eight Met Death

IN BROKEN REGION

Ship Crashed On Side of Mountain While Trying To Avoid Storm

By Robert Redwine, Associated Press staff correspondent and eyewitness of the plane's wreckage.

GRANT, N. M., Sept. 9.—(P)—Funeral preparations were being made today to bury the final chapter of the tragedy in which eight lives were snuffed out in the crash of an air liner on a mountain side as she fought to find a haven of refuge from a raging storm.

Five passengers, one a woman, and a crew of three died as the giant ship, City of San Francisco, of the Trans-Continental Air Transport, battered her way through a densely wooded mountain slope to a final resting place on the mountain side. The cause of the disaster will never be known.

A searching party of 50, including an Associated Press correspondent, led by Sheriff Bob Roberts found the wreckage on the precipitous side of Mount Taylor which rears its jagged peaks nearly 12,000 feet in the air.

In a little canyon, heavily wooded with giant pine, the party came upon the wreckage, scattered over a space of more than 150 yards. The largest piece of wreckage found was a wing section, some ten feet long.

The three motors, which had roared their challenge to the Elements when the City of San Francisco took off at Albuquerque last Tuesday morning at ten o'clock, were shattered and broken, strewn the last few rods of the journey's end. Three of the bodies were identified, one as that of Mrs. Corina Raymond, Glendale, Calif., the only woman aboard. A. B. McGaffey, Albuquerque, N. M., and Harris Livermore, of Boston. These were made ready for removal to Albuquerque. McGaffey's identification was made through a bit of melted metal, remains of an Indian silver bracelet which he always wore.

Bodies of the others will be taken to Gallup, N. M., today. They were: William Henry Beers, of New York; W. M. Campbell, of Cincinnati; passengers and J. B. Stow and E. A. Dietel, pilots, and Maynard Canfield, courier, members of the crew.

Murder-Suicide In Country Home

Three Dead Near Siloam Springs Following Use Of Razor

SILOAM SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Three persons were dead and their farm home, four and one half miles from here was in ruins today after what officers believe to have been a double murder and suicide and a fire meant to erase traces of the crime.

William Denman, 50, a farmer, his wife, 51, and Mrs. D. E. Caldwell, a relative, were dead. Neighbors saw the four-room house in flames early today and rushed to the scene, reaching there only when the little house was burned to its foundations.

The bodies of Denman and his wife were found in the back yard, Denman's body lying across that of his wife. The woman had had her throat cut, and there were three deep gashes across Denman's throat, officers said inflicted with a razor.

The charred remains of Mrs. Caldwell were found in what had been the living room of the house. The condition of the remains made it impossible for the coroner's jury immediately empaneled to determine how she met death. The jury returned a verdict that Denman killed his wife and then suicided.

Resists Officers, Pays Heavy Fine

Hempstead County Man Given $50 Fine for Resisting Officers

Ed Adams, living in the southern part of this county, was fined $50 and costs in Justice W. G. Bright's court Saturday afternoon on a charge of resisting officers or obstructing legal process.

It is said that one Kitchener, of Texarkana, was arrested last week in Lewisville on a charge of reckless driving and was assessed a fine by the court at that place. He induced an officer to go with him to the country where he asserted he could obtain money to pay the fine. The officer went with him—but Kitchener didn't stay, making an escape from his guardian.

Later, it is alleged that the Lafayette county officers had a tip Kitchener would be found at the Adams home, in this county. They came up and in company with Deputy Burns, an officer in this county, went to the Adams home for their man. There Adams refused to permit them to enter his home and they were forced to return to Hope for warrants of arrest. The warrants were issued and Saturday Adams was picked up on the streets here by Officers Turner and Bearden and fined.

Meantime, Mr. Kitchener is among the missing.

Here's A Watermelon Story To Bring A Smile To the Face of A Real Grower

Dudley Haddock, secretary of the Arkansas State Chamber of Commerce, was reading the Forch Valley Herald (Plainview, Ark.) the other day when he came across a watermelon story that made him laugh.

"It is one of the best watermelon lies I have ever seen," he wrote The Editor of The Star, from Little Rock, "and because of the interest in Watermelons in the Hope district I thought perhaps you might like to have it. If you have space enough to produce it."

We have and thanks, Mr. Haddock. Here is what the Forch Valley Herald wrote about one of its Plainview farmers:

John Barton, long since acclaimed chief of the local torpedos, comes to the fore, with a new rock and bull story which is worthy of repetition.

John has come into possession of a watermelon which weighs 96 pounds (the Ola correspondent of the Arkansas Democrat will please note) and he claims to have produced the melon.

Spain No Place for Wanderlust Victims

MADRID, Sept. 9.—Spain is a bad place for hoboes or those in the habit of trying to "beat" their way inside the passenger coaches. Every train in Spain carries as part of its regular equipment a couple of Civil Guards (Guardas Civiles), and one of their principal functions is to see to it that persons trying to "gyp" the railroads are suitably punished.

Trouble Breaks Again On Chino-Russian Border

Passenger Train On Chinese Eastern Railway Blown To Bits

PLANES ARE BOMBING

Border City In Flames As Planes Deal Death To Soldiers

SHANGHAI, Sept. 9.—(P)—A Harbin dispatch, timed early this afternoon and received here early tonight, said that a passenger train on the Chinese Eastern railway had been blown up late Saturday, the track having been mined with high explosives. The train was bound from Pogranichnaya to Harbin.

According to the report, two persons were killed and three injured when the locomotive was blown off the track, the baggage car splintered and the first and second-class passenger cars telescoped. Japanese news reports to China were that Russian artillery was bombarding Pogranichnaya and planes were dropping bombs on the village, already ablaze.

TOKYO, Sept. 9.—(P)—Renewed and most serious fighting was reported at both the eastern and western termini of the Chinese Eastern railway today by Rengo, a Japanese news agency, in a dispatch from Harbin, Manchurian railway center.

A message from Pogranichnaya, Eastern border point, said that Soviet planes had bombed the railway station there as well as the houses surrounding it. It was the second air attack of the day, one Chinese soldier having been killed and two wounded in the raid.

Pantages Trial Brings On Thrills

Two Girls Jailed Charged With Trying to "Fix" A Witness

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9.—(P)—Two Hollywood young women are in jail after failing to make $25,000 bond each today on a charge of suggesting to a state's witness that he might receive $25,000 for testifying against the state in the trial of Alexander Pantages, millionaire theatrical owner.

The two are Nancy Lee, 25-year-old sculptress, and her half sister, Janice Hill, 19-year-old stenographer. They were accused by district attorney Burton Bits with making the offer to a state's witness whose identity was withheld.

The attorney says the note to the witness came from the rooming house where the women had been "planted" a week ago. The landlady of the place, guarding the girls while they were getting ready to go to jail, rushed out of the room, claiming Miss Lee had threatened her with a butcher knife and that Miss Hill kicked her.

Million Trout To Swim In National Park Waters

GLACIER PARK, Mont. Sept. 9.—The 250 lake and numerous streams in Glacier National Park now provide excellent fishing, but extensive plans have been made to improve the sport for the tremendous influx of people who will visit this great playground when through auto roads are completed next year, according to Superintendent J. R. Eakin.

This year eight rearing ponds have been constructed at the Glacier Park hatchery located east of the Continental Divide. These ponds will read two million trout to fingerling size. Next year a hatchery and eight rearing ponds will be constructed at Fish Creek west of the Continental Divide. This four million fingerling trout will be liberated in the fall before the freezeup. Fish culturists estimate that so far as rearing maturity is concerned, this will be equal to liberating 40,000,000 small fry.

Fred J. Foster has been detailed by the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries as Fish Culturist for all National Parks. Previously the work in Glacier Park was supervised by W. T. Thompson, Bozeman Station, U. S. Bureau of Fisheries. Foster will devote his entire time to fish culture in the parks and Thompson will be continued but Thompson will collaborate with him. Policies evolved by Thompson will be more intensive.

Committee Okays Governor's Acts

Confirms Appointments Made To Hospital and Asylum Commission

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 9.—(P)—A joint legislative committee today confirmed Governor Parnell's appointment of nine members of the construction commission for the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases and the Arkansas Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

The vacancy on the commission, caused by the resignation of T. L. Temple, of Texarkana, because he was leaving the state, was filled by naming T. C. McRae, Jr., of Prescott, son of the late former governor, to the place.

The last legislature appropriated sums for construction of a new hospital for nervous diseases and repairs and addition to the Booneville institution.

Valuations Fixed On Railroad Lines

Missouri Pacific Pays Big End of Rail Taxes In State

Tentative valuation assessments totaling $17,270,314 on the properties of the Frisco and Kansas City Southern railroads were announced recently by the Arkansas Tax Commission. Assessments of approximately $65,000,000 were placed on the Missouri Pacific and the Rock Island and the Cotton Belt roads, bringing the total for the five main railroads to $82,933,345 for 1929 over the 1928 assessments. The valuations as fixed by the commission will become final within 10 days unless protested by officials of the companies. It is believed hearings to reduce the assessments will be asked by each of the railroads. Reductions were made in the 1929 assessments of the Cotton Belt and the Kansas City Southern as compared with 1928, while the levies against the other three companies was increased.

Protecting a Murderer

THERE were big doings at Eufaula, Ala., the other day. A special train rolled in from Montgomery. One hundred and fifty National Guardsmen, fully armed and equipped, got off and formed in military ranks, joined by 50 more who had drawn up on the platform to meet them.

Out of the train, into the midst of this armed display, got several deputy sheriffs with a prisoner. Surrounded by the soldiers, the prisoner was escorted up the street to the courthouse; and when he entered the courtroom to go on trial all of the soldiers were in the courtroom, alert to see that nothing out of the way occurred.

After the trial the 200 soldiers escorted the prisoner back to the special train again, while hundreds of people lined the streets to watch.

Now all that sounds rather peculiar, especially when it is noticed that the prisoner was not some famous highwayman or dreaded gangster, but just a friendless negro murderer. Yet that surprising display of force stands greatly to the credit to Alabama and Gov. Bibb Graves, who ordered it. If it had not been for the soldiers, the prisoner very possibly would have been lynched. By using an armed guard out of all proportion to the ordinary murder case, Alabama saved herself from that disgrace.

The negro had committed a murder that was unusually atrocious. His guilt was quite evident; and since he is now under sentence of death, it might be asked why it matters greatly whether he be hanged by a mob or by the state. Yet Gov. Graves, ordering out the troops to guarantee this murderer a fair trial, did exactly the right thing—and no doubt has the support of his state in his action.

The orderly processes of law are always preferable to mob rule. They are so much preferable that no cost is too great to insure them. Alabama did a good job when it turned out 200 soldiers to protect one colored murderer.

A Word to the Wise

"YOU want to have your earnings and your property secure. You want a free and fair opportunity to conduct your own business and make your way in the world without danger of being overcome by a Government monopoly. When the Government goes into business it lays a tax on everybody else in that business and uses the money that it collects from its competitors to establish a monopoly and drive them out of business. No one can compete. When the Government really starts into a line of business that door of opportunity is closed to the people. It has always been an American ideal that the door of opportunity should remain open." — Calvin Coolidge, former President of the United States.

Doing Away With Guides

EVERY American is familiar with the ordinary town where there are "spots of historic interest" which draws tourists.

You get off of the train, or pull your car up to the curb, and straightway your ear is assailed by the cries of the guides. Sometimes they almost assault you in their eagerness to be the first to pilot you about. Big sight-seeing busses rumble by constantly, with leather-lunged gentlemen bawling through megaphones the stories and traditions or this or that noted place.

The procedure, nearly always, is dismaying; yet in most cases the luckless tourist has no recourse. He must get in the bus, or hire a guide of his own, if he is to see the things his legitimate curiosity impels him to see. But his enjoyment of them is reduced by half by the incessant, learned-by-heart chatter of the guides; and the people who happen to live in the town cannot help feeling the loss of dignity that the whole business involves.

All of these things being so, it is a pleasure to record the way Fredericksburg, in Virginia, has solved the problem. Fredericksburg, boyhood home of Washington, is full of historic spots. It gets many tourists, eager to visit these places. And the city fathers have printed a great number of little maps. On these maps the points of interest are numbered, described and identified. Each tourist is given one and told to go and be his own guide.

There are no professional guides and no sight-seeing busses. The tourist sees the sights in far greater comfort, and the town is spared the racket and distraction of the ordinary sight-seer's haven.

It is an excellent plan. Let's hope it can be copied widely.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DITCHER

Washington—The biggest Senate investigation to all time, if it ever gets going full steam, will be a combined inquiry into the "Power Trust" and the "Radio Trust."

The resources of these so-called big trusts are at least $12,000,000,000.

Under the Couzens resolution, passed at the last session, the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee is directed to "investigate the relationship existing between the different kinds of communication service used in interstate and foreign commerce, including radio, telephone, telegraph and all kinds of wireless and cable services so used, and transmission of power by wire or wireless."

It is also directed to investigate connections, relationships, ownership and control, stock ownership and trade practices and activities of corporations and persons engaged in communications services.

A Lot Can Happen

This resolution is pretty far-reaching and some persons think it is loaded with dynamite. One of the magazines of the electric power industry recently had an editorial raising the question how the industry ever let such a resolution pass and admitted that as compared with the Couzens resolution, the Walsh public utilities resolution was only a summer zephyr. Yet it will be recalled that in the Walsh resolution fight the Senate galleries and hallways were crowded with the power people until they finally succeeded in shunting the proposed investigation to the Federal Trade Commission. The fact seems to be that the power lobby was caught napping when the Couzens resolution went through late in the session.

At the time the Walsh resolution was introduced Senator Watson of Indiana was chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, a conservative who seldom if ever has given the more powerful interests any trouble. Now the chairman is Senator Jim Couzens of Michigan, who is notoriously independent of outside influences. Among the other members are such independents as Howell of Nebraska, Brookhart of Iowa, Dill of Washington and Wheeler of Montana.

Just how deeply this committee will probe cannot yet be predicted, but if supporters of the Couzens resolution outside the Senate have their way it will go very deep indeed.

First there is the power angle. Despite the vigorous investigating tactics of the Federal Trade Commission, there are still plenty of senators who would like to go after the "power trust" in one of their own investigations. Recent doings at the Federal Power Commission, where there seems to be a row between those who want to be extraordinarily nice to the power companies and those who don't. Would be one point of attack. And there are other things some senators would like to investigate which come outside the Trade Commission's inquiry.

Outsiders are Interested

Second, there's the "radio trust." Independent radio concerns, organized in the Radio Protective Association, are all primed to go after the combination of the Radio Corporation, General Electric, American Telephone & Telegraph, Westinghouse and United Fruit companies on the allegation that they have formed monopolies through illegal use of patents.

An exchange tells of an asylum in England where they issue a newspaper and the lunatics write their copy on both sides of the paper. — West Point (Miss.) Times-Leader.

NO USE TO SUFFER LIKE HE ONCE DID

Man Finds Relief From Constipation Troubles by Taking Black-Draught.

Seneca, S. C.—"I am forty-four years old, and I might say," relates Mr. W. A. Bruce, of this city, "that I have taken Black-Draught, at intervals, all my life.

"I remember that when just a small child, my mother made me take Black-Draught and gave it to me.

"As I grew up, when I needed a medicine for biliousness, or for constipation, I would take Black-Draught.

"A few years back, I noticed that if I took the least cold, and my stomach was out of order, I would have very severe headache. The cold seemed to settle there, my eyes would burn, and I would suffer a good bit of pain. I took Black-Draught for this, and I do not have that trouble now.

"I found, too, that there was no use suffering from constipation, as I once did. Black-Draught relieved me, and I am feeling fine now.

"I recommend Black-Draught to others, and have had them to tell me how much good it did them."

Evolution for Better Melons

This looks like a simple problem in addition, but it is only on the way to being solved to the satisfaction of Dr. J. E. Melhus of Iowa State College of Agriculture. It shows his attempt to cross one weak, but sweet and commercially profitable, type of watermelon, at upper left, with a wilt resistant type developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, to make a commercial and wilt resistant melon. He's on the road to success.

Striking a Million Matches a Minute

A million matches are struck every minute throughout the United States for all purposes. Nearly half a million are needed to light the 216,000 cigarettes used each minute, according to estimates based on available statistics.

Wind blowing out the flame, and the prevalent prejudice against lighting three cigarettes from one match, raises the average number of matches needed to light one cigarette to slightly more than two, a series of tests and observations reveals.

The government report that almost 114,000,000,000 cigarettes were manufactured last year, indicates that 216,000 were lighted on the average each minute. This increase of 8,000,000,000 over the preceding year is held to be due in large part to the use of cigarettes as a part of the diet, especially by women, and to measure the high degree in which new standards of niceness and purity due to toasting the tobacco have removed the old-time prejudice against the short smoke.

Bott Advertising Firm in 14th Year

Little Rock's Nationally Known Agency Passes 13th Birthday

Among the superstitious thirteen is held to be an omen of disaster but at least one Arkansas firm does not consider it in that light.
The Bott Advertising agency, founded in 1916 by Leo P. Bott, Jr., celebrated its thirteen anniversary September 5. "This has been by far the best year the agency has known since I started out in the advertising business thirteen years ago," said Mr. Bott. "Like the late Woodrow Wilson, thirteen has proven a lucky number for me."
From a one-office, one-man concern the agency has grown during these thirteen years to occupy a suite of seven offices in the Home Insurance building, Little Rock, with a staff of seven.

At the present time Bott Advertising agency is engaged in preparing for Fairbanks, Alaska Commercial club, Richardson Highway, Alaska Guides, Inc., Alaskan towns, International Highway and other hotels.

Community advertising, especially of Arkansas resorts and resources has come to be an important department of this agency's work, cities from nearly ever state in the Union having had Bott Advertising agency prepare folders, booklets and other literature featuring their communities. The Bott Advertising agency, in such national magazines as Time, Tide and similar publications, telling the world of the advantages of the Wonder State has created most favorable comment and interest in this sections resources.

Recently two members of Bott Advertising agency were prize winners in a contest conducted by the Missouri Pacific Railroad, among agency and newspaper copy writers over the entire territory covered by Missouri Pacific Lines, Miss Vy McMahan and Mr. Bott winning third and fourth prizes respectively.

The Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL - POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Helen Page feels unhappy when the girls at the Spann boarding school tease her about being Miss Simplicity just to please her handsome guarian, Leonard Brent, who supplies her with ample funds and smart Parisian frocks. But she dares not question his reasons even when her roommate accuses her of fobbing in love for giving up dancing and parties for him.

Realizing her school-girl infatuation for him, Brent exacts her promise to do anything he asks her to, and says he will tell her about her parentage after she graduates.

One day Brent spies a gold and diamond locket on a starving beggar who has fallen in an alley. He bends over to take the locket and hears mumbled words about "Evangeline — disinherited," and decides to help the old man and find out his story.

The beggar is too far gone to reveal much except that his name is Charles Owens Nellin; that his wife is dead; and that there was a baby Evangeline whom he has hidden from her wealthy grandfather, Cyril K. Cunningham. Unable to learn more, Brent gives him money for food and lodging and arranges to meet him again next day. Then he goes to dine with a woman called Carmel and they quarrel because he is late.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER VI

Rain dashed and pelted against the windows with increasing violence as the early hours of the morning, synchronizing with the hands of the expensive watch on a stand by the walnut bed, neared the sleeper's breakfast time.

Presently Brent stirred and sat up, tossing the cover away and stretching his silk clad arms luxuriously. But for all the comfort and security of his surroundings his brow was creased with a scowl as he observed the storm spending itself against the glass barriers.

And certainly the grounds were extensive enough to make the place valuable, that is, if the farstretching fields and wooded lots he saw belonged to the Cunningham estate.

He drove on, looking ahead for a gas station or garage. A glance at the gasoline gauge on the instrument panel indicated that his fuel was getting low.

That was just what he wanted. At the station he stepped again and asked for gas and water, and then decided he'd have a cup of coffee at the lunch stand. He was in no hurry about venturing forth in the rain once more. Over the coffee and a package of cigarettes he fell into conversation with the man behind the counter.

Fortunately for Brent the young fellow was in a mood for talking. Business had been light all day and there had been little conversation in his small, steamy eating place.

Whipped and bent with wind and rain, they were themselves deprived of dignity.

Brent halted his car on the highway and surveyed the house with a feeling of disappointment. He'd been prepared to find it in decadence, but its present state hardly justified the belief that it was owned and occupied by a millionaire, he felt.

He'd been told the house was truly, rotting. Old and dismal, bleak and forlorn. It stood in the midst of stately trees that might have lent it grace another time, but now, Cunningham's address. With some little difficulty, owing to the storm and the strangeness of the locality, he found the street and presently the house.

Again Nellin's veracity was confirmed. Brent said, he represented a newspaper syndicate in New York. Out on a story about the old families of the east. Doing New York and vicinity at present.

"Some day you 'picked,' the other commented.

"Best kind of weather," Brent up to the man's vanity. "I was sent to you, Mr. Bruite," he said, "because my people were told that your long association with the prominent families of this community has put you in a position to afford us information that we can get from no other source."

Mr. Bruite beamed a trifle. "Yes," he said, "I am an old resident here. I've seen families come and go. I guess I could tell you some things. Newspaper story. You say?"

"Yes, quite a number of them. You see, America is losing its aristocracy, or rather, I should say, there are so many new people of wealth and influence that the old families who built the country are being forgotten by the masses. We are making an effort to recreate their lives in print for the public, make them real and . . . well, you understand. Intimate stories. The kind that draw people closer to those they're reading about. Anecdotes, things like that. Human interest."

"I see," Mr. Bruite said, a bit vaguely.

"And no one can aid us more than someone who has had close contact with our subjects," Bruite, in your position here, must have found yourself personally acquiring knowledge of the prominent families in Yonkers that will be of much more interest to the public than mere data that can be obtained from records. Haven't you for instance, been called upon at times to fulfill the office of doctor, lawyer, judge?"

Brent smiled ingratiatingly and Mr. Bruite expanded promisingly.

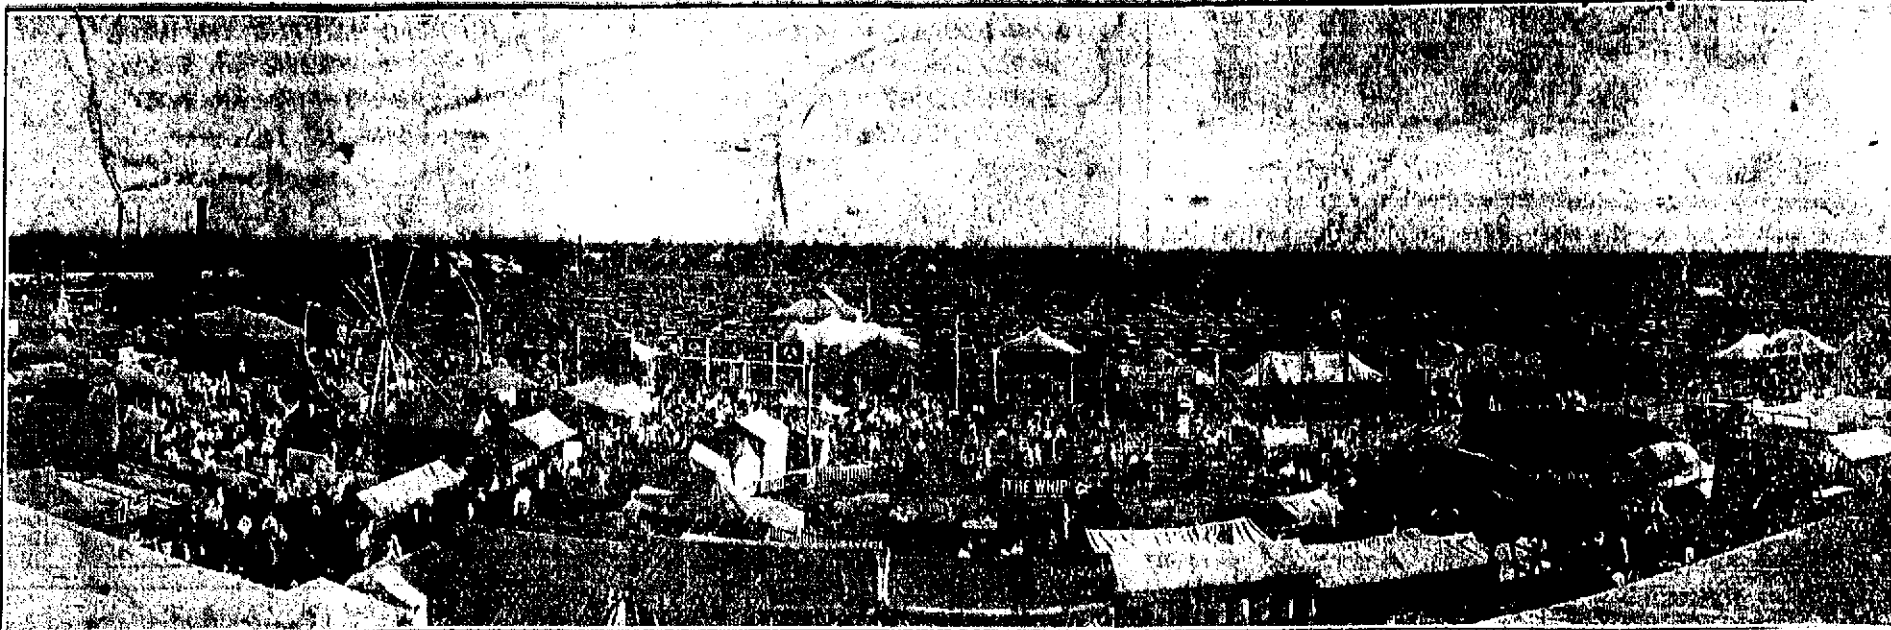

"Of course, of course," he agreed; "but I can't betray any confidences, mind you."

"Certainly not," Brent assured him emphatically. "We couldn't use anything that was likely to arouse protest. Just give me what you are quite certain you will be pleased to see in print."

Brute cogitated. "Well now," he began uncertainly, "there's the Doake family. Ever heard of them? And the Northwylms?"

Brent got out a note-book and pencil. Fifteen minutes later he had a formidable list of names there's no sense in getting the facts wrong. What do you know about him already?"

Brent was amused at the man's garrulous jealousy of his reputation for having more first-hand information about the people of his community than had any one else. He considered his answer carefully, then:

"We've got a few sticks about his daughter," he said, with an apologetic note in his voice, "Ran away with a musician, didn't she? I think our version has it that she came back a few years later and begged the old man to forgive her. I don't suppose you know anything about that?" he added cunningly.

"Don't I?" Bruite bristled. "I know that isn't the story at all! She never came home. Don't you go printing anything like that about her. You just listen to me if you think Evangeline Cunningham would come crawling back!"

Jury Trying Sixteen In Gastonia Strike Murder

It took nine days to select this jury which will try the 16 Gastonia N. C., strikers and strike organizers who are charged with killing Chief of Police O. F. Adolph last June. A total of 385 men were examined before these 12 were agreed upon. Pictured on the steps of the court house at Charlotte are, left to right: C. M. Martin, C. M. Stillwell, J. O. McCoy, John Phillips, J. G. Campbell, A. F. Parker, J. M. Hicks, C. L. Benson, S. L. Caldwell, Jeff Morris, Jr., Conrad G. Torrence and G. L. Shuford.

"That isn't the story at all. She never came home. You just listen to me if you think Evangeline Cunningham would come crawling back!"

For a moment he was tempted to give up his plans, to remain indoors and let the chimera that had seemed a lucky chance the night before go glimmering. But Brent had found that dogged determination won many victories for him and he was loath to overlook even the faintest promise of a rich haul.

There might be something besides imagination in the old man's story, he reflected. He had followed up more fantastic, more impossible seeming leads, and found himself rewarded for his pains.

An hour later he took his customary place in the hotel dining room and ordered a substantial breakfast, being in doubt as to when and where he would lunch.

When the crisp bacon, the delicately cooked eggs and the thin brown toast were eaten, the second cup of crystal-clear coffee leisurely downed, he got up to set out on the task to which he meant to devote the day.

He hesitated about using his own car but finally decided in favor of it. Driving helped him to think, made planning easier.

It was a dangerous drive through the blinding rain to his destination, Yonkers. He could work from there and take a cab if it seemed wiser, he told himself.

The danger was never uppermost in Brent's thoughts. He was interweaving the threads of the story Charles Nellin had told him in his rational but disconnected phrases, making them fit in his own mind.

He had already consulted a directory and learned that there lived in Yonkers a man named Cyril Kilmer Cunningham, just as Nellin had said. But what he wanted now was more intimate information concerning Cunningham.

His first move when he drove into the main section of the village was to inquire the way to Well, there remained the verification of neighborhood gossip.

explained. "Find people where you expect them. Ready to talk too."

"Well, if you're looking for somebody to talk you go see old man Bruite at the Three Corners Drug Store. He'll tell you plenty. That old fellow's been here all his life. Worked in that same store since he was a kid. It's his boast that he knows everything of importance that's happened around here in the last 50 years. He'll give you the low down on the old families, all right."

"Thanks," Brent said gratefully. "That's a fine lead. Well, how much do I owe you? I'd better catch Bruite when he isn't likely to be busy."

He paid for his coffee with a dollar bill, and when the change was handed him he also received directions for finding the Three Corners Drug Store.

As he expected, the place was all but deserted. Brent asked at once for Mr. Bruite and introduced himself, with a flattering play-and jotted facts. But Bruite had not yet come to the name Cunningham and Brent did not wish to press him. So he went on taking down the man's broadly encompassing idea of human interest, beginning to wonder if he was wasting his time.

Then, and somewhat reluctantly, but drawn to it by his own growing interest in his recital, Bruite mentioned Cyril Cunningham.

"Maybe you've heard of old Cunningham who lives out at Bramblewood?" he said cautiously.

Brent nodded. "Oh yes," he said. "We've already an article on him. But it's sketchy. If you can help us fill it out . . . But I understand that there's a story there we can't get . . . no one knows about it."

"Well," Bruite cleared his throat for his important announcement. "Well, I know that story, and I guess I'm one of the few that does. Mind, I'm not saying I'm going to tell you what it is, but if you're going to write about him anyway

Promoters Say Mitchell Will Give Hall Run for Evening's Honors

Louisiana Streak Bears Reputation of Always Taking The Fight to the Other Fellow and Dangerous All the Way

Fight fans at last will have an opportunity to see Johnny Hall, Little Rock negro who has been taking them alike down here, forced to extend himself. That is, if the dope percolating up here from Louisiana headquarters of one "H" Mitchell is correct.

Leo Robbins this morning wired transportation to Mitchell and his manager, Sam Cole, the latter being a boxer who goes on Thursday night also, with instructions for them to report here tonight and do the rest of their training locally. This was done, Robbins says, in order fans might know there would be no last-minute run-outs, forcing substitution on the evening's card. Mitchell comes touted as able to Louisiana as among the best in his weight—practically the same position Hall holds up here.

Robbins announces all seats at the rink have been re-arranged and numbered and there will be no confusion in seating those who attend. Johnny Colmans is another favorite slated to go on during the evening and fans will be glad to see him in action as he is one fighter who can always be depended upon to get in there and fight.

needs more reinforcements for the infield.

In the pitching and outfield departments the competition for the extra berths will be just as fierce. Bill Breckenridge, who is getting his grooming on the bench this season, will be given his chance as a starting pitcher next year. Breckenridge and Liebhardt, a recent purchase, and a few others will either vie with the veteran pitchers who may come back or compete with each other for the vacancies left by the departure of the veterans.

The Athletics' ardent search of the minor leagues for a shortstop brought forth today a second candidate to battle Joe Boley for the berth in 1930. The latest acquisition is Eric McNair, a slugger the Athletics bought from Mem-

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Texas Gudman gets a big kick out of the cauliflower industry. Says she has seen so many other kinds of fights in her time that she likes to keep herself in trim by watching the professional cutters.

She likes baseball too and sits back at third base at the Polo grounds. The 18th hole at Pebble Beach is called a jinx.

That may be because it's the hardest hole on the course. And on the seventh hole they're bringing back your club, say the wind changes while Father Lumpkin, star full-back, is said to be lost to Georgia Tech for 1929. He cut classes in summer school and had to pass in this work to be eligible to play this fall.

Father went back to Dallas, Texas. However, he may return in time to pass his exam and be ready for the first game in October. It doesn't look possible. Loss of Lumpkin would be a severe blow to the Tornado.

phus and who was sought by virtually every club in the majors.

The other new candidate who will battle with McNair for Boley's job next season is Roy Tarr, the youngster recently purchased from the McCook team of the Nebraska State League.

Second baseman Newell Morse and Pitcher Leon Liebhardt have just been bought from the Des Moines Demons.

Pitcher Liebhardt, son of the old Cleveland spitball pitcher, is also in his first year in organized baseball. His record of eight wins and seven defeats is not very impressive, but the Demons used him mostly as a relief pitcher until recently.

MiddleWeight Champ Stages Party and Winds Up In Bastille

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, middleweight boxing champion, was in jail here early today on a charge of being drunk and possessing intoxicants.

The boxer and three companions from the movie colony were arrested after police had answered protests from residents of the fashionable Whitley Heights district that a fight was raging in an apartment house there.

Officers said they found furniture broken and doors and windows crashed in when they entered the building.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Jackson and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hatch Sunday.

Champions Hit the Skids; Challengers Stage Colossal Coup

Stopping the champs, the challengers' battle cry, produced staggering losses among the sports monarchs this year. The under dogs are rich with trophies, having bagged the crowns of Bobby Jones, the Yankees, Johnny Farrell, Dazzy Vance, the California crew and others.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The usually wait until around the Christmas holidays to bang out a resume about the awful toll among the champions in the preceding 12 months.

But the mighty fell so early and so hard this season that a premature resume perhaps will be pardoned.

So many have fallen that about the only major sports champions who still have to walk the tight wire are Glenna Collett, queen of women golfers, and a few synthetic boxing barons.

Starting with the collapse of the New York Rangers, kings of 1928 hockey, the champion-breaking plague reached greatest momentum during the summer when it wiped out such 1928 greats as the Yankees, the California crew and Johnny Farrell. And then the mighty Bobby Jones was toppled.

These were among the major casualties, but among the tangled tangle strewn wreckage are found Strangler Lewis, heavyweight wrestling czar; Reigh Count, 1928 Kentucky Derby winner; Joe Dundee, welterweight champion; Dazzy Vance, strike out wizard and premier 1928 pitcher and Goose Goslin, American League batting champion last year.

Most of the big shots cracked so quickly that the finish wasn't even close.

The Rangers never seriously threatened in the hockey race.

California, behind from the start at Poughkeepsie, sank with a mild to go.

The Yankees were stopped almost before they got started.

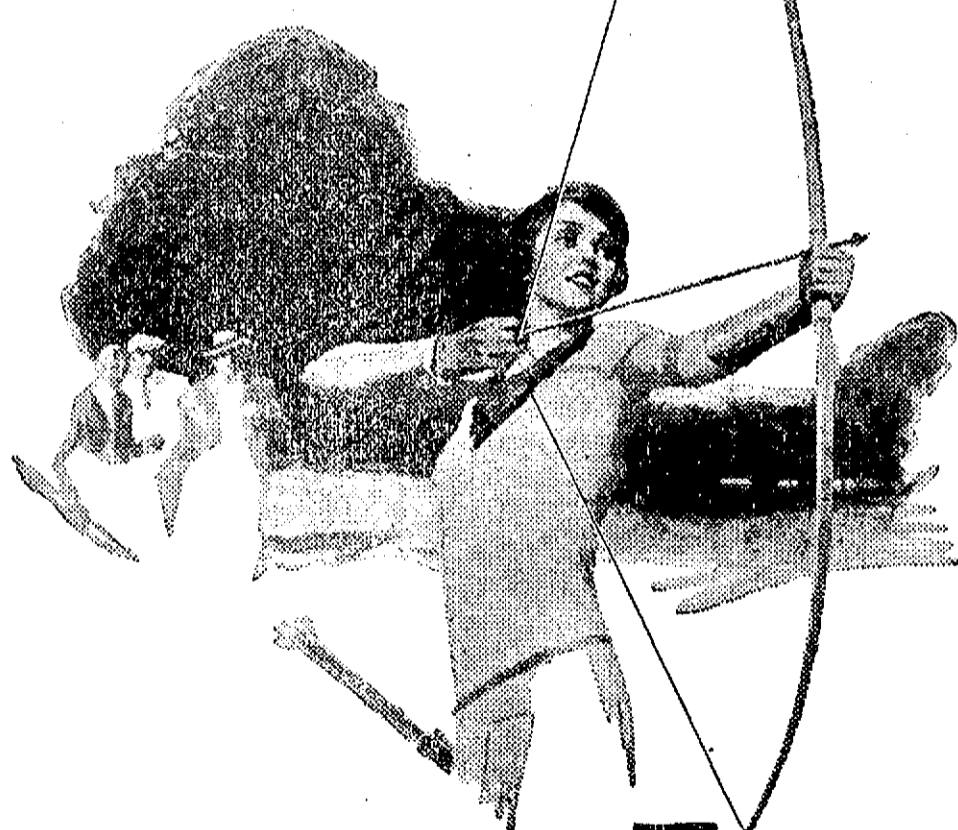

Johnny Farrell scarcely had time to warm up at Winged Foot before his national open crown flitted away.

Goose Goslin never was a threat in the American league batting race.

And Bobby Jones! The Type "covering" his first round downfall in the national amateur is still hot.

What a year for champions! The challengers simply turned things upside down. That's all. And that is plenty.

In the Field with the County Agents

Considerable inquiry has been made relative to the feeding value of whey and to show results of work with whey the following reprint of work done by the University of Wisconsin is quoted:

Whey for Pigs and Calves
PIGS. Whey is relatively low in protein, as the casein of the milk is removed in cheesemaking. Indeed there is but 0.8 lbs of whey and the nutritive ratio is 1:6.8. Owing to this low content of protein, recently it was not thought that whey had any value as a supplement to the cereal grains. However, surprising results have been secured in feeding trials by Morrison and Bohstedt at the Wisconsin Station in which well grown pigs weighing 125 to 150 lbs. have been fattened on only barley and skimmed milk. In two trials pigs self-fed ground barley and given in addition all the whey they would drink gained 2.22 lbs a head daily, eating 7.8 lbs barley a day and drinking 18.4 lbs whey. They required only 353 lbs. barley and 854 lbs. whey for 100 lbs. gain. Pigs self-fed barley and tankage gained on the average only 1.64 lbs daily in these trials, and required 450 lbs. barley and 23 lbs. tankage for 100 lbs. gain. These excellent gains were secured on the ration of only whey and barley in spite of the fact that it had a nutritive ratio of 1:7.4, thus furnishing considerably less protein than is usually recommended for growing and fattening pigs. These results are apparently due to the fact that while whey is low in protein, the protein it does contain, which is chiefly milk albumen, is of excellent quality to serve as supplement to the proteins of the cereals.

Other trials at the same station have shown that for younger pigs some protein rich food, such as linseed meal or wheat middlings, should be added to barley and whey to balance the ration more completely. With corn and whey, a supplement should be fed even to pigs over 150 lbs. in weight, for corn contains considerably less protein than barley. An important fact brought out in these trials is that if pigs are given what whey they will drink there is no further need, even for young pigs in dry-

Five years ago, Gillham originated, by accident, the style of song-singing he has since made famous. While accompanying a radio singer on the piano, he was dared to sing a song himself into the microphone. He did so, and was at once engaged as a novelty singer on his own.

When Lindy and Anne Dashed to Rescue of Plane

Lindy had an urgent job of flying to do, and Anne wasn't going to sit safely at home while her bird-man husband dashed almost across the continent to aid in the search for the lost sky liner, City of San Francisco. For the sake of speed, they borrowed the special Lockheed-Vega plane, shown at the top, in which Captain Frank Hawkes made his transcontinental flight records. Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh are pictured, lower right, at Roosevelt Field, Long Island, and the arrows show their respective places in the ship during their swift westward flight. Lindy occupied the pilot's open cockpit, but his wife sat in the tiny forward cabin, seated on her parachute pack and squeezed in between extra fuel tanks, luggage and camping equipment—a hazardous situation in case any accident occurred. Lower you see Captain Hawkes and Colonel Lindbergh, the latter seated in the cockpit just before the take-off from the field.

"The Studio Murder Mystery," the authors, the Edingtons, and Frank Tuttle, the director-adaptor, have tried hard to do so and they believe they have succeeded in baffling any audience.
